

2025 Summer Institute

The Western Pennsylvania Writing Project’s Summer Institute provides classroom teachers, community educators, and education leaders with dedicated time for professional learning and leadership development through the practice and sharing of writing. Participants engage in meaningful writing experiences, deepen their understanding of writing instruction, and build a supportive community to inspire a vibrant writing culture within their learning communities.

The program is free due to generous support from Pitt’s Provost Office and will be held from July 8 - August 1, 2025. Act 48 credit is available. Contact WPWP@pitt.edu with questions.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

- Teacher-Led Design: Rejuvenate your passion while receiving a wealth of resources, methodologies, and a supportive professional network
- Inquiry-Based Exploration: In-depth study of education topics
- Writing Workshops: Led by experienced writers and educators, focusing on integrating writing across disciplines
- Teacher Retreat Day: Centered on rest and creativity to inspire and refresh teachers.
- Professional Networking: Connect with the National Writing Project and the vibrant WPWP community for unparalleled support.

Registration ends April 1!

